

go on systematically, so that new ones will be more accessible.

There is need of a more extensive children's section as more and more children are learning to use and appreciate the library. Such sections as Literature and History are not adequate to meet requirements of students and others. The demand for new fiction is continuous (Especially for Gone with the Wind!).

During the past year there has been no new equipment, and no repairs made to the rooms, though some are needed. Available funds have been used only for the purchase and binding of books.

The binding item should not be cut as rebinding is an economy, and a book in fair condition, well rebound, will outlast a new copy.

In closing, may I add my thanks to the Board of Directors and to the "Friends of the Library" who have given generously of their wisdom, time, and energy to make this library worth while.

Maudie D. Johnson
Librarian
